THE PROJECT

The Pennsylvania Air National Guard engaged Mott MacDonald to develop a new 17,000 square foot building to house Operations Training, Dining, and Administration at the Fort Indiantown Gap Air Guard Station. The project also includes the site design surrounding the building, including parking, loading docks, driveways, and pedestrian access.

THE DESIGN

The massing consists of a high centralized barrel vault surrounded by a low U-shaped massing with shed roofs. The Dining Hall occupies the central mass. Operable partitions allow the Dining Hall and Operations Classrooms to be used as one large space or separate Classrooms as needed. The high ceilings afforded by the barrel vault structure allow large screens for proper viewing of learning materials despite the total depth of the large rooms. The Administration wing is located on the south side of the U-shaped massing and is designed to take advantage of daylighting.
